Properly and professionally implementing the recommended home modifications listed above can improve the safety, accessibility and universal livability of your home. However, your home's condition is not the only factor to consider when determining aging in place viability. Physical & mental health, financial stability, proximity to goods & services and required health care needs are all areas that must be carefully considered before making the commitment to modify a home for long term livability. Please feel free to contact us for additional resources about aging in place.

Sincerely,

Your friends at Silver Spaces
